DESCRIPTION

Mulberry oghi is a strong alcoholic drink many produced in Armenia. It has the delicate and unique aroma of mulberries and herbs and a pleasant, slightly oily taste. It is on a level with such premium drinks as tequila, rum, calvados and brandy. Let's visit one Armenian distillery and see the process of its production. The process begins with the collection of mulberries. A large piece of cellophane is put under a mulberry tree.

A man climbs the tree and starts gently shaking the branches. Mulberries fall down on the cellophane then they are cleaned and squished into juice which is poured into tanks for fermentation. After that it's distilled in a special copper still. Once you taste this delicious drink you will never try the usual again!!!
